A LOOK AT THE IMPACT, GROWTH,
AND PROGRESS MADE WHEN STUDENTS COME FIRST

KIDS AREN'T AN AFTERTHOUGHT;
THEY'RE THE REASON FOR EVERY CONVERSATION WE HAVE."

Superintendent Chris Neeley

Kids First Champions,

As we reflect on the work highlighted in this report, I'm reminded of a simple truth that guides everything we do: kids belong in every conversation. Whether we're planning district initiatives, supporting school leaders, or walking through classrooms, our direction becomes clearer, and our impact stronger, when we begin with kids at the center.

Over this past year, I've seen remarkable dedication across our district. From our own staff to school leadership teams, educators, and the students themselves, there is a shared commitment to moving from good to great to best. It's not a slogan; it's an expectation we hold for ourselves and for one another.

That expectation shows up in everyday moments: the way teachers create engaging, joyful learning environments; the way principals build cultures where students are known and valued; and the way our district teams focus on providing strong support while holding ourselves and our schools accountable to the mission. And every time we step into a school, students remind us why the work matters and what the work requires.

Our mission remains steady and clear. When students lead the way, the path forward is never complicated. We listen, we learn, we collaborate, and we continue raising the bar together.

Thank you for the work you do each day, for the vision you bring to your role, and for the belief that our schools and our students are capable of the very best.

PCSD'S CHARGE

The Charter Act makes clear why we exist. South Carolina's charter school law was passed in 1996 and defined seven key purposes and one goal of closing the achievement gap between low-performing students and high-performing students, each of which connects to our strategic pillars and grounds us in our principles to serve the students of South Carolina not just well, but to the highest possible level:

- 1 Improve student learning;
- 2 Increase learning opportunities for students;
- 3 Encourage the use of a variety of productive teaching methods;
- 4 Establish new forms of accountability for schools;
- 5 Create new professional opportunities for teachers, including the opportunity to be responsible for the learning program at the school site;
- 6 Assist South Carolina in reaching academic excellence;
- 7 And create new, innovative, and flexible ways of educating children within the public school system, with the goal of closing achievement gaps between low-performing student groups and high-performing student groups.

The legislature created the South Carolina Public Charter School District (PCSD) in 2006 as a state-wide authorizer of new charter schools, schools transferring from local districts, and virtual charter schools. The PCSD is unique in that it is state-funded and—unlike charters authorized by local districts—its schools can serve students from anywhere in the state. An appointed board of trustees with leaders from various regions and cities around South Carolina governs the PCSD. Driven by parent demand, the PCSD has grown rapidly over the years. In the 2024-25 school year, the district oversaw 44 charter schools, both virtual and brick-and-mortar, serving approximately 20,600 students statewide.
